clouds.
When shall we three meet again;
In thunder, lightning, or in rain. Shaksp.
With strange rains, hails, and showers were they perpe-cuted. Wisdom xvi. 16.
The loft clouds pour
Into the sea an useless show'r,
And the vex'd sailors curse the rain,
For which poor farmers pray'd in vain. Waller.
Rain is water by the heat of the sun divided into very small parts ascending in the air, till encountering the cold, it becomes condensed into clouds, and descends in drops. Ray.
RAINBOW. n. f. [rain and bow.] The iris; the femicircle of various colours which appears in showery weather.
Casting of the water in a most cunning manner, makes a perfect rainbow, not more pleasant to the eye than to the mind, so sensibly to see the proof of the heavenly iris. Sidney.
To add another hue unto the rainbow. Shaksp.
The rainbow is drawn like a nymph with large wings dispread in the form of a femicircle, the feathers of sundry colours. Peach.
They could not be ignorant of the promise of God never to drown the world, and the rainbow before their eyes to put them in mind of it. Brown's Vulgar Errors.
This rainbow never appears but where it rains in the sunshine, and may be made artificially by spouting up water, which may break aloft, and scatter into drops, and fall down like rain; for the sun, shining upon these drops, certainly causes the bow to appear to a spectator standing in a true position to the rain and sun: this bow is made by refraction of the sun's light in drops of falling rain. Newton's Opticks.
The dome's high arch reflects the mingled blaze,
And forms a rainbow of alternate rays. Pope.
RAINDEER. [pranay, Saxon; rangifer, Latin.] A deer with large horns, which, in the northern regions, draws sledges

Naked and helpless. Thomson's Autumn.
RAISIN. n. f. [racemus, Lat. raisin, Fr.]
Raisins are the fruit of the vine suffered to remain on the tree till perfectly ripened, and then dried either by the sun or the heat of an oven: grapes of every kind, preserved in this manner, are called raisins, but those dried in the sun are much sweeter and pleasanter than those dried in ovens; they are called jar raisins, from their being imported in earthen jars: the finest are the fruit of the vitis Damascena. Hill's Materia Med.
Dried grapes or raisins, boiled in a convenient proportion of water, make a sweet liquor, which, being betimes distilled, afford an oil and spirit much like the raisins themselves. Boyle.
RAKE. n. f. [raytrum, Lat. pace, Sax. racche, Dutch.]
1. An instrument with teeth, by which the ground is divided, or light bodies are gathered up.
At Midsummer down with the brembles and brakes,
And after abroad with thy forks and thy rakes. Tusser.
O that thy bounteous deity would please
To guide my rake upon the chinking found
Of some vast treasure hidden under ground.
He examines his face in the stream, combs his rufal locks
with a rake. Dryden.
